Profile: Pearl Taylor

Pearl (she/her) is a Melbourne (Naarm) based artist, primarily interested in paper cutting and printmaking. Yet with a masters in art therapy, art teacher training and a passion for theology - her practice is one big life dabble into materiality, community, joy and passion. With an interest in theopoetics and contemplation, she seeks a flow state between creativity, spirituality and wellbeing.

Whilst Pearl had always planned to 'just' be an art therapist, spirit has lead her deeper into discernment around the ways that creative expression can enable a participatory relationship with self, faith, love, hope, peace and justice.

As a resident artist in her church - many long, deep, Julian of Norwich inspired days are spent, tending to creative fires: her own and the communities.

Nestled away in Fairfield, Pearl contemplates a new community space named "Coracle", bringing creativity, community and connection to those that seek it.

Pearl is co-curating the creative spaces at the festival.
