Profile : David Landis-Morse

David Landis-Morse (he/him) is a 60 year-old bi/pan guy who works for the Uniting Church. He has worked in hospitality for most of his life as a waiter and then as a hotel manager, before transitioning to managing a not for profit cafe that trains people in job skills. He now works as a pastor and as part of his role he looks at Queer faith formation and how that integrates with the modern church. He runs a Cafe of Dangerous Ideas that has been operating for over ten years. The cafe was also the site of Alphabet Soup Heidelberg - a monthly cafe set up to support trans and gender-diverse folks - for over two years. David is also part of the Banyule City Council's LGBTQIA+ committee and he has a deeply unhealthy love of sweet foods.
